Levinas in Kaunas will address the development of the philosophy of Emmanuel Levinas, from Lithuania to France, from “pre-philosophical experiences” of his youth to his mature revolutionary philosophy.

All rights reserved

Born in Kaunas in 1906, Levinas, the Litvak, went to France, in 1923, as a young Lithuanian student. He became one of the greatest European philosophers of the 20th Century.

Levinas' thought radiates far beyond the circles of specialists and has a tremendous influence in many fields including medical ethics, psychology, education, religious studies, art, politics, communication and economy.

Dissidents fighting for human rights and the democracy in Eastern Europe and Latin America, intellectuals and statesmen, such as Vaclav Havel in Czechoslovakia or Jorge Semprun in Spain, have testified to their affinity with Levinas' thought and the inspiration they have drawn from it.
